Mrs. Logg pointed out that with air transportation so much in the ascendency, inquiries are continually being received in Seattle as to the best air routes in the north and northwest and Victoria is losing much of this traffic owing to inadequate landing facilities. Plots would rather go to Vancouver, with its better airport, in spite of the fact that weather conditions in Victoria are more sultable for flying, she averred.

Mrs. Logg, who is president of the Women's Aeronautical Association of Seattle, told of the work of that organization. It has made a feature of the junior section and has organized a club of ten girls in each of the six high schools of the Sound city. These girls are being taught to become "airminede" by being given the ground school course in flying, visiting airports and factories for the making of the Powell River Company. The speaker called attention to the safety of flying as compared with other methods of transportation, noting that the 8,000 licensed planes flying for private commercial companies in the United States last year had flown in all 200,000,000 miles. Yet the percentage of fatal accidents was only one in every 500,000 miles.

Came to Victoria in 1889 and Started in Present Business in 1901

One of the best known and highest respected pioneer mer-chants of the city, Angus Campbell, head of the Government street ready-to-wear firm, passed away very suddenly yesterday af-ternoon in Portland, Oregon, where he underwent a serious operation on Saturday morning. Word had been received that the operation was quite successful and Mr. Campbell's condition satisfac-tory, and the unexpected news of his sudden death came as a tragic shock to a wide circle of friends. BORN IN INVERNESS

The late Mr. Campbell was born in Inverness-shire, Scotland, in 1861, and commenced his business parer in a drygoods firm at Beauly, Scotland, in 1876. Like many of his compatriots, Mr. Campbell, as a young man, realized the possibilities of the west and came to Canada. After a few years in Eastern Canada, Mr. Campbell, with Mrs. Campbell, ame to Victoria in 1889, where they engaged in business with the late James Hutcheson at the "Westside" store on Government Street. A similar meeting at which the executives of the Canadian Pacific Railway will be present will be held Wednesday. The conferences are in pursuance of an application from the brotherhood that has been pending since January.

pending since January.

The dispute, which was brought on by the general distress conditions that engulfed Canada, centres around the fact that the railway companies found it necessary to reduce their working staffs. Large numbers of crews were placed on temporary and short-time runs, which reduced the weekly wages paid the men.

DIVISION OF WORK

DIVISION OF WORK

The firemen claimed they should not receive the brunt of this reduction—that the engineers should agree to a division of the available work. It was their claim that the engineers, nominally their superiors, in many cases had retained their full-time job, while the vast majority of the men who were laid off were firemen. It was argued that an engineer, if no work were available for him in that capacity, stepped down to a firemen's job, displacing the regular man on that particular run.

LARGE CIRCLE OF FRIENDS IN many places will be shocked at the sudden passing of Mr. Angus Campbell, pioneer merchant and resident of this city for more than forty years, which occurred at Portland, Oregon, early yesterday evening following a serious withstood the shock of the operation splendidly, and had wired yesterday morning that he was progressing favorably, an unexpected complication set in later in the day which caused death.

For thirty years Mr. Campbell had presided over the business which still bears his name, making it one of the most successful of its kind in the country. He was well known in trade circles in eastern Canada and the United States, while his annual buying trips to Great Britain and continental Europe gave him a wide acquaintance among Old World producers of dry Typical of the men and women from north of the Tweed who have played such a striking part in the building of modern Canada, Mr. Campbell was master of his business, the soul of honor and commercial integrity, and the relations between him and his employees always have been of the most cordial nature.

Mr. Campbell will long be remembered for his many admirable qualities of mind and heart, not the least of which was his fine sense of human sympathy and consideration for others. He was the soul of generosity in thought as well as in deed, the grateful recollection of which in many quarters will be an eloquent tribute to his memory. He was an ardent golfer and even less than a week ago he was on the fairways at Colwood apparently in the best of His unexpected passing will be keenly regretted by a host of friends whose sympathy will go out to Mrs. Campbell in her great sorrow.

WE HAVE ALWAYS HAD THEM

MR. E. W. BEATTY, PRESIDENT of the Canadian Pacific Railway, a few days ago reminded an audience in Toronto that Canada had experienced economic depressions of a much more severe character than that through which she is passing now. This was notably the case from 1893 to 1896. The McKinley tariff had dislocated the whole trade of Canada with the United States.' In 1893 Australia had experienced a terrible banking crash followed by a severe stringency in the London money market. Many American railroads passed into the hands of receiverships; large corporations closed their doors; banks were failing daily; currency went to a premium and could hardly be obtained at all.

By 1894 business was paralyzed over the entire western half of the continent,' Beatty said. "Wheat fell to an abnormally low price and a winter of unusual severity tremend-ously multiplied the difficulties of the Canadian Pacific. In the spring of 1893, its dividend was reduced to one and a half per cent, and the price of a $100 share fell to $35.

"Then came the opening of new mines in British Columbia and the Lake Superior district, making up somewhat for diminished traffic in wheat, and business gradually came back to culminate in a tide of prosperity in 1897.

"During all this period the people of the west never lost heart and I think it well to remind you of this period of financial depression because you may recognize certain parallels to the financial conditions of the past year. The recent depression in Canada has, however, been considerably less in proportion to that of the greater economic interdependence than was the case thirty-five years ago. We have a richer supply of natural resources to draw upon, a wider spread of manufactures, a greater variety of export markets served by an immensely en-larged merchant marine, and what I venture to think is still more vital, namely, a greater confidence in ourselves."

Many will remember the depression of 1907; yet two years later the Dominion entered on a period of development and prosperity that astonished the world and which continued until 1913 when another economic subsidence occurred. In 1921-22 we had another recession, and two years later a triumphant recovery. Be-fore long there will be another upward trend which no doubt will continue for seven or eight years.

ARMAND THE CHAMELEON

WHEN MR. ARMAND LAvergne, Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons, took part in the debate on the Speech from the Throne a few days ago he was challenged by Mr. Mackenzie King on the ground that his office required him to be strictnon-partizan and therefore precluded him from participation in a purely party controversy. Mr. King pointed out that Mr. Lavergne's predecessors in office had refrained from taking part in the House debates for that reason, and he questioned Lavergne's right to intervene on this occasion. The Speaker decided that there was nothing in the rules of the House which barred his deputy from taking part in the discussions, so Mr. Lavergne had his say.

The spectacle of Armand Lavergne as a

Conservative member and Deputy Speaker appointed by the Conservative government must tickle frequenters of the galleries of the House whose memories go back some twenty-five years. In those days Armand, then one of the youngest nbers of the assembly, was lieutenant to Henri Bourassa, militant Nationalist whose chief aversion was imperialism and who used to assail Sir Wilfrid Laurier on that ground. Lavergne was Bourassa's sole supporter in the House at that time, but between him and his leader in ability, intellectual power and influence there was a gap as wide as the Atlantic. Nevertheless, he was able to make clear in his rather feeble echoes of the oratorical thunder of Mr. Bourassa that he also despised imperialism and Torvism.

ince then Mr. Bourassa has mellowed considerably, but he is still a spirited independent and in his inimitable style at times flings sharply at both sides. In the same period Mr. Lavergne has flopped from one party to another until treme type ready to champion everything to which he formerly was strongly opposed. Mr. Bourassa's amusement over the spectacle of his erstwhile aide, who used to strut his Nationalism in the House behind the coat-tails of his leader, now talking the lingo of the Tory party must be intense.

ACHES IN THE HEAD

IF SCIENTISTS ARE RIGHT IN their deductions that headaches are a sign of brains there is reason to rejoice among those who do not belong to the intelligentsia. vestigators into this ailment at the research hospital of the University of Illinois are reaching the opinion that disease is peculiar to the more intellectual. These scientists, however, are suggesting that most cases of headache can be remedied by a simple regulation of the method

At the same time, these experts say that those who are subject to pains in the head are descended from an intellectual faction. For this disease is hereditary.

People who go to great length to prove the superiority of their ancestry have always been a pain in the neck. Now they shall probably become an ache in the head.

In football, baseball, and track and field sports, none was greater than Thorpe in his day. Money came easy after he turned his talents to professional sport. But the money dwindled away.

Many men of the world of sports, when their hey-day of quick, easy money passes, continue to seek money in some sort of cheap racket or near-racket, rather than work. The habit of easy-come, easy-go is too hard to break. They never amount to anything after that one brief moment of sporting triumph. They have forgotten, or have never learned, how to work.

But not Jim Thorpe. When need came, Jim rolled up his sleeves and took a pick in his hand. And he has been supporting a wife and family on his earnings. He does not earn much, but it is honest money. Many opportunities must have come to Thorpe to get money in devious ways, trading the last rags of his great name to some cheap racketeer, bootlegger, or flim-flam promoter. But Jim digs with his

A man who can do that must have stuff in him. Jim Thorpe deserves success.

Because Captain Alfred Duff Cooper, the Baldwin candidate in the by-election in the London constituency of St. George's the other day, defeated Sir Ernest Petter, the Beaver-brook-Rothermere candidate, by only 5,710 votes, the press barons are claiming a moral victory and do not recognize in the official Conservative's return an endorsement of Mr. Baldwin's leadership. If they feel like that about it, it is quite probable Mr. Baldwin will not grudge them their sense of elation over the 29,000, a margin of 5,710 appears fairly substantial.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

DRINKERS IN BERLIN The New York Times

A new angle on the liquor question has been revealed in Germany. There it is not the alcoholic content of siquor which worries the authorities, out the material of which the container itself is made. The liquor may be hard, but the cup in which it is served must be soft.

A new ruling of the police department in Berlin provides that henceforth beer must be served in paper cups instead of heavy steins. The order applies particularly to political meetings, where enthusiastic partisans have been inclined to regard their tankards not simply as containers of appnes particularly to political meetings, where enthusiastic partisans have been inclined to regard their tankards not simply as containers of refreshment, but as handy political weapons. Hecklers have shown a too frequent tendency to become hurlers, and a well-aimed stein can effectively conclude an argument.

With the new rule effective, muscular violence will be no more harmful than verbal violence. And to prevent hot-headed persons from improvising dangerous weapons, the order also provides "that chairs and tables must be firmly screwed to the floor, and that no bottles be brought into the meeting halls."

The new policy might be profitably adapted to the United States, though it is baseball rather than politics which excites Americans to a bottlethrowing pitch. But for football, not even the most "firmly screwed" goalposts could withstand the pressure of student enthusiasm.

Across The Bay

for a change—We submit to outrageous pressure from the little girl next door— And make a magnificent contribution to the lifeboat fund.

By H. B. W.

A CROSS THE Bay latery we have been financing in millions. Now this, of course, is relatively simple. Financing in pennies is the job that requires real financial brains, And I find that while we have been financing in millions across the hay, and gaily adding on or taking off hundreds of thousands at a breath, out our way a much more remarkable feat of finance has been in process. The little girl next door has been raising a whole dollar for sweet charity.

TI IS OF no importance, of course, and won't

IT IS OF no importance, of course, and won't affect your purse like our financing across the Bay; but I thought at a time like this (when anything which averts the mind from our financing across the Bay is doubly welcome) you might be interested in the methods used by the little girl next door to collect a dollar for charity. Incidentally, I reveal them in strict confidence, lest Finance Minister Jones copy them on a larger scale to raise a few more millions.

WELL, SO far as I can make out from the little WELL, SO far as I can make out from the little girl, who is as vague about it as a government budget, the charity campaign is designed to raise enough money to buy a lifeboat for some missionary ship on the West Coast of this Island. Of course, the little girl has no particular interest in missionaries on the West Coast, or anywhere, I fear, indeed, after her recent adventures at the Sunday school (where she attempted to introduce poker chips and playing cards) that she has very little interest in Christianity, I should say, rather, that she is a robust and fearless young pagan. But the young woman who helps the little girl's mother look after her is an active religionist. She came home the other night from a meeting of some organization of similar young women and announced that she had to raise a whole dollar to equip the missionaries' ship with a new lifeboat. equip the missionaries' ship with a new lifeboat.

INTO THIS great project the little girl entered with customary enthusiasm, having no idea of what it was all about. (Which is always the of what it was all about. (Which is always the best way to be when you are crusading for a cause.) The missionaries, I feel, would acknowledge a tremendous debt of gratitude to the little girl if they could see how she went about raising money for their lifeboat. The young woman who is interested in religion accompanied her, of course, but it was the little girl who did the work. She was bundled up in her white fur coat against the March winds, she had on gum boots to protect her from the March mud nuddles, and she held the March winds, she had on gum boots to protect her from the March mud puddles, and she held tightly in her hand a brown leather purse, dis-carded by her mother, and large enough to con-tain the total revenues of the new universal income tax. Thus equipped, she commenced her march through the entire neighborhood, with such excitement that I suspect she believed the fund was intended to buy a new boat for her, and not for the missionaries.

TO GET THE fund off to a good start, she had when you understand that she believes poker chips to be the most valuable coin of the realm, and considers a blue one sufficient to buy a house and lot, you will realize that she was not asking the public to do more than she had done herself. As compared with her valuable poker chips, indeed, she asked the neighbors for only ten cents each.

HER FIRST efforts were extremely gratifying. HER FIRST efforts were extremely gratifying. She got ten cents each from old Mrs. Glumby (who made a long speech on the low price of eggs and the consequent financial difficulties of the Glumby family), from old Bill Potts, the wood man (who complained of hard times in the wood business and paid her in pennies) and from Mr. Whifileton (who said it was an outrage for any organization to exploit a little child). She even got a contribution from old Sam Hong, the Chinaman who lives down in the awarm and even got a contribution from old Sam Hong, the Chinaman who lives down in the swamp and who, I am quite sure, imagined that he was contributing to a toy boat for the little girl.

At the first objection. He objected, he said, in principle to being held up in this fashion even by his friend the little girl. The principle, not the money, was the thing which interested Mr. Pudbury. Besides, said Mr. Pudbury, he was not interested in missionaries, he was fed up with paying taxes, he had lost faith in the whole economic system and he was about to turn Bolshevist. The little girl listened solemnly to ten minutes of Mr. Pudbury's views on economics and then held out ner open purse and said: "Ten cents for the boat, ner open purse and said: "Ten cents for the boat, please. Ten cents for the big, fat boat." Where-upon Mr. Pudbury, the Bolshevist, ignominiously abandoned his principles and, groping into his blue overalls pockets, pulled out a whole quarter. And having kissed the little girl on the top of her head (for he had been told it was unhyglenic to kiss her on the face) Mr. Pudbury, the Bolshevist, seemed to think he had got his money's worth.

District Attorney Buron Pitts of Los Angeles, refused to discuss the movements of his deputies, other than to comment: "We are working on the Tallman case."

While officers connected with the investigation are keeping silence regarding their activities in the Tallman manhunt which has commanded the attention of the police of many lands for nearly two years, it was disclosed in Los Angeles that the two district attorney's officers had left their headquarters for Seattle. It was then learned new information regarding the possible whereabouts of Tallman had come into possession of Los Angeles pairse through an informant more than a week ago.

Chinese Medical Local Teacher Missionary Wed Here Saturday On Saturday Mr. Gideon Hicks, in

A well-known Chinese missionary of the United Church was the bridegroom at an interesting wedding solemnized on Saturday afternoon at the Motropolitan Church, between Miss Mary San Toy Chin, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chin Yee You of Vancouver and Dr. Edward Basil, Gung of Pembroke Street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. C. T. Scott, assisted by Rev. Dr. E. S. Osterhaut of Vancouver and Rev. Dr. Lowe, pastor of the United Church Chinese Mission.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Ying F. Chin, wore a white lace wedding dress with tulle and carried a beautiful shower bouquet of Ophelia rosebuds, sweet peas and freezias.

She was attended by the Misses Edythe and Effie Lee, who wore charming bridesmalds' frocks of mauve and pink ninon, respectively. They carried arm bouquets of pink carnations and freezias, There were two little flower girls, Beatrice Chin and Irene Yip, wearing pretty frilled frocks of jade green tilk and carrying dainty baskets with pink rosebuds and freezias.

The wedding was largely attended and later in the afternoon a banquet was-held, followed by a reception at which about 200 guests tendered their felicitations to the brided pair. For this occasion the bride donned the Chinese wedding robe. a beautifully embroidered black satin coat with similarly embroidered trousers of red satin, which had been specially imported from the Orient.

The piano work of Madeline Trigg, Eisle Cross and Walter Colvin, who also played a piano duet with Edwin Lovell, and another duet-by Orca Lamerton and Opal Abercrombie, was also much enjoyed. MENTAL STIMULUS

It is nearly two years since Mrs. Pyddoke had her first lesson in flying. She was so thrilled that on returning home she persuaded her husband to visit the aerodrome for a flight. It happened to be a "bumpy" day in the air and the rector was not impressed, but further experience converted him and he soon became as keen as his wife.

For eighteen months they have been in training at Tollerton, visiting the aerodrome sometimes twice a week.

"Flying is the best recreation in the world and the finest mental stimulus," said the rector. "I am now seriously considering the purchase, of an airplane."

FOR SPRING STYLES

New frocks for old can be achieved by making last year's models into 1931 styles. Left to right: The straight-line frock, especially one that has a pleated panel, can become a chic jumper frock made longer by letting it down on the shoulders with buttoned-on pieces made from the sleeves. The pointed hemline frock, with a too-short front and back, can add a circular flounce of different material, but the same color, and add a cowi collar and flaring cuffs of this new contrasting fabric. For the frock worn out under the arms, the new two-color and two-material styles are ideal. This frock takes on a lace yoke with short sleeves, lengthening the frock at the same time.

India Leader Talks With Newspapermen at 4 a.m.; Hundreds Follow Him

Associated Press

New Delhi, March 23.—"Come walk with me at 4 o'clock in the morning and I will answer all your questions," Mahatma Gandhi said when asked for an interview. And so, with several hundred admirers trotting behind, the Indian Nationalist leader, setting a rapid pace despite his frail physique and more than sixty-three years, discussed the affairs of his country as he walked for five miles among the crumbling monuments and scarred forts of Delhi's forgotten empires. "War will never be exterminated by any agency until men and nations become more spiritual and adopt the principle of brotherhood and concord rather than antagonism, competition and superiority of brute force," Gandhi declared.

"None. I would consider an ideal form of government one in which a man reaches his full stature in every phase of life and where his interests."

"Will Socialism accomplish that?"

"Not socialism as it is practised politically to-day." Gandhi replied.

MISSIONARIES' POSITION

Asked if he would favor retention of foreign missionaries when India secured self-government, Gandhi answered:

"If instead of confining themselves purely to humanitarian work and material service to the poor, they limit their activities as at present to procesly the means of medical sid, education and such, then I would certainly ask them to withdraw. Every nation's religion is as good as any other. Certainly india's religions are adequate for her people and we need no converting spiritually."

Psychological effect may be very marked says Connie Mack

Jim Thorpe is attempting comeback unique in sport history.

N. H. L. Goalies differ in opinion of who packs fastest shot.

Tan opinion of the new baseball to be used this year in the major leagues. Many of the major teams in the southern camps have not tried out the new pellet extensively yet, while pitchers on teams that have been using it for some time refuse to say much about it. Rube Walberg, former Seattle pitcher, and now with the Philadelphia Athletics, who is said to have more natural stuff than the usual run of big league hurlers, says he has noticed no difference, though he admits he has not cut loose yet.

Eddie Rommel, whose knuckle-ball should be particularly affected by a ball with a heavier seam, will admit nothing, although he has been reported to be throwing some wicked shoots during batting practice in the Athletics' training camp.

President E. S. Barnard of the American League has stated he thinks a lot of fish stories have been put into circulation about the nature of the raised-seam ball. He thinks the difference it will make in the style of play will not be noticed until the regular season is under way.

"I think one feature that may be brought out is in the hitting," he said "The ball with the raised seam may not travel quite as far when batted. The seam is calculated to furnish an air resistance which will cut down the length of long files perhaps twenty or twenty-five feet. In some parks, of course, this will make an appreciable gifference."

The question. "Would the new London, March 23.—Easter Hero, the high-class steeplechaser owned by J. H. Whitney of the United States, was back in the forefront in to-digy's call-over of betting odds on the Grand National, to be run at Aintree on Friday.

The betting on the leading contenders was as follows: Easter Hero, 100 to 9 against; Sir Lindsay, 100 to 7; Ballasport, 100 to 7; Drintyre, 18 to 1; Drin, 18 to 1; Graile, 18 to 1; Kakushin, 20 to 1; Shaun Goilin, winner in 1930, 25 to 1; Mehleray's Bell, 25 to 1; Gib, 33 to 1; Richmond Second, 33 to 1.

The field was reduced to forty-seven to-day when Delarue, owned by J. B. Snow, was scratched.

The question, "Would the new ball make much difference with pitchers like Grove or Earnshaw?" was asked of Connie Mack, veteran manager of the Athletics, "I do not think so," Mack replied. "But the psychological effect of all this 'new ball' talk may have a remarkable effect. Pitchers may get the idea that they have more stuff than they really have, and the confidence they put into their work actually may help them to be more effective.

RIDES SMART RACE

O'Donnell rode a smart race. He saved his horse in the early running but moved up rapidly from the last position. He was in ninth at the half-way mark, and third by a head as the ten rounded into the last stretch.

Lady Broadcast, strongly favored to give Sun Beau the test if any of the starters would, pulled up at the finish a bad ninth.

Mike Hall came to Aqua Callente this winter from retirement. After winning approximately $100.000 previously, his owner sent him to England where he fell down badly at Ascot. The trip affected the seven-year-old son of Hourless-Clonakilty so much that he was retired last spring afterhis return. He came out for the winter here and won one race previous to yesterday, but was hardly considered as a likely winner, though he was priced at six to one with Pigeon Hole and The Choctaw before post time.

The Victoria Motorcycle Club's first miniature reliability run, held recently, resulted in victory for A. West, one of the club's veteran riders, who scored 959 points out of a possible 1,000 over a difficult course. S. Dunnell, with 954.5, was second, and B. Dillabough, with 952.5, was third.

The contest was the first of its kind ever held on the Pacific Coast, and was over a course only a third of a mile in length, but containing every possible kind of a hazard, including a deep water hole which eliminated many of the competitors.

Each rider negotiated seven laps, except for Dunnell and Dillabough, who were handicapped an extra lap for having gone over the course previous to the trial.

REMEDIES AND OUTLOOK

"The foregoing statistical review constitutes the essence of the vast amount of accessible data, the interpretation of which has divided those interested in the subject into two clearly defined groups, namely, those who would place the responsibility for this situation and the obligation to effect corrective measures on the leading gold standard nations, and those who feel that the importance of the problem to the great commercial nations has been grossly exaggerated and that the entire situation should therefore be permitted to take its natural course.

"There is some merit in the arguments both of those who view the skulation with alarm and those who do not. However, within the array of premises and counter-premises certain factors stand out. Silver in the gold standard nations, which constitute the group that has led the industrial progress of the world, is a commodity, and must be considered as such in any consideration of its economic bearing on these countries. As a commodity, it constitutes an industry, silver mining, which is, however, largely a by-product industry.

"One estimate of the value of silver REMEDIES AND OUTLOOK which is, however, largely a by-product industry.

"One estimate of the value of silver production in the world last year places the total at only 3 per cent of that of corn. There is no assurance that any measures adopted to aid our foreign business by effecting measures to bolster the price of silver would not cost a great deal more than the profit that we might derive; nor is there any assurance that this metal may not recover without any outside interference. It must be remembereed that the political uncertainty and a few years of bad crops have gone far in contributing to the present depression in China, and there are some lactions in that country which are decidedly opposed to any felief measures in the form of loans of silver from abroad."

After a visit among the Huron tribes, the French explorer, Champlain, wrote, in substance:
"They live in cabins shaped like grape arbors. The usual cabin is fifty yards long and ten yards wide. On each side is a bench four feet high. The benches are used as beds during winter. In summer they sleep on mats around bonfires inside the cabins. Sometimes there are twelve bonfires in a single cabin.
"The sides of the cabins are covered with bark. There are no windows, and usually there is only one opening to let the smoke go through the roof. This makes the cabins very smoky, and many of the old Indians have become blind as a result.

Cold, Damp Surroundings May Lead to Rheumatic Infection

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Most authorities are convinced that the tendency to rheumatism runs in families, although unquestionably the environment in which the person lives plays a large part, particularly as concerns the likelihood of infection.

The Ministry of Health of Great Britain found an hereditary factor in thirty-six per cent. of men and forty-eight per cent. of men and forty-eight per cent. of women with rheumatic complaints. The rheumatoid condition can develop at any age and can affect the human being at almost any period in life. Both chorea, which is presumed to belong to the same group of diseases, and rheumatic joints occur from three to six times more frequently in women than in men.

The general study of statistics of people with these disorders shows that cold, damp surroundings are a frequent factor in association with the onset of rheumatic conditions. Not infrequently the person affected has been chilled by exposure to rain or cold before the onset of the disease.

Of particular importance in the occurrence of rheumatic infection is previous infection with influenza,

The final period, however, was a high-scoring affair, which had the customers in hyaterics part of the time. The Leafs scored four goals in a row, Ottawa retorted with a pair, and then the locals finished up the party with another brace.

U.S. EXPECTS

Washington, March 23.—Now that the Farm Board has announced that it will not support, the wheat market during the coming crop year, the price of wheat probably will drop to 50 cents a bushel by next fall at Chicago, says a statement to-day from Chester H. Gray, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Motors Buying Metals and Rubber; Sees Low Passed

New York, March 23.—The announcement that General Motors has placed orders for its requirements of copper, cotton, rubber, tin and zine for the remainder of 1931 production season suggests that, in the judgment of the managers of that corporation, commodity prices have touched bottom. This should prove a big factor in stimulating business recovery and is a strong argument for bullish tendencies in the stock market.

What a Pleasure It Is To Own a Steinway!

PIANO playing is not merely an enjoyment, it is the very groundwork of culture itself when your instrument is a Steinway. Because it has been the ONE dominating and outstanding plane of all the world since the days of Wagner, Liszt and Rubinstein it is accepted to-day as the final word in musical perfection. Placed in your home it adds magnificence, beauty and charm . . . instinctively your friends refer to it, not as "your plane," but as "your Steinway."

It is as easy for you to own a genuine Steinway as any other plano . . . and yet what a joy it is to own this ONE, incomparable instrument!

FARM BOARD ABANDONS ATTEMPT TO HOLD UP WHEAT PRICES AND WILL RETURN TO WORLD LEVELS

Washington, B.C., March 23.—The Federal Farm Board will not stabilise the 1931 wheat crop in the United States by buying wheat with government of the fire of the hoard's action, but experts here consider a probable result will be the gradual reduction of price in the United States above the world be the gradual reduction of price in the United States to the world level with eventual re-entry of U.S. wheat into the world's market.

CANNOT BUY MORE THAN IT SELLS

The announcement made by the Farm Board to-day said the Grain Stabilization Corporation agent of the board "cannot indefinitely buy more than it below costs. Farmers knowing this would not ask that it be done. It would not be in the long run in the farmers' interest."

Decreased acreage was held by the board to be the answer to the producers problem.

The agnouncement further said the corporation would continue to stabilize the 1930 crop, and its sales policy would impose the minimum of burden upon domestic and world prices.

NOT MONEY ENOUGH

The probability that the Farm Board would not stabilize the 1931 crop has been anticipated for some time inasmuch as it did not have the funds to continue its driving operations in support of the U.S. domestic price and there was no prospect of getting more money.

July and September futures have reached the lowest prices since 1895.

A big line of shorts were reported trapped in Freeport, Texas, which is up five points in the last couple of days since cutting its dividend. Some time ago it was announced the company had expanded its operations in the manganese field through acquisition of controlling interest in the Cuban-American Manganese Corporation, owners of large manganese deposits in Cuba. Recent rumors indicate the stock is receiving sponsorship of some outstanding people.

Dixie Lee Playing At the Playhouse In "The Big Party"

Sue Carol and Walter Catlett Also in Leading Roles in Entertaining Play

Entertaining Play

Featured roles are the ones that many screen players spend years of effort in striving for, and even then often fail to reach. A small number, however, manage to gain the coveted goal in a comparatively short time, thanks to unusual talent and abilities. In the case of Dixle Lee, for example, this spot has been attained through just three talking pictures. She first played in the "Fox Movietone Follies of 1929," then in "Why Leave Home?" and in "Let's Go Places." Her work in these films won her one of the leading roles in "The Big Party." John Blystone's current talking production for Fox Movietone, which is now showing at the Playhouse Theatre. Sue Carol and Walter Catlett share leading honors with Miss Lee in "The Big Party," and the excellent work of this popular trio is well supported by Frank Albertson. notables. Several catchy song numbers, written by three of the best known composing teams in the country—Kernell and Thompson, Nelson and Pease and Hanley and McCarthy, are featured together with a glittering array of settings in this entertaining story of New York's low and high life.

Malay Natives Play

At the Coliseum In Great Jungle Story

"Rango" is Drama of Tropical Woods and Features Wild Animals

Play-acting is one of the favorite recreations of the native Malayans, according to Ernest B. Schoedsack, adventurer-cameraman who made "Rango" now fit the Coliseum Thate, in the depths of the Sumatra Jungles. He found them anxious to "act" for him. "For centuries," says Schoedsack, the tribes have celebrated their rather wague and numerous religious ceremonials with plays woven about ancient legends. "Everyone seeks the honor of appearing in these entertainments, and it is not uncommon for individuals to train themselves for a role months, in advance. Their style of acting is, however, far more restrained than the Anglio-Saxon variety, and they appear innexpressive to those unacquainted with the full meaning of their scant gestures."

"All was disappointed when he learned that I wasted him to dealers Schoedsack. "He was persuaded to stay, but he made it known that the white man's entertainment was far inferior to the Malay brand."

"You might use a noon rally to-day to make the white man's entertainment was far inferior to the Malay brand."

EDNA FERBER

Richard Dix in Lead

Brought to the theatre-going public by Radio Pictures, Edna Ferber's epic "Cimarron," at the Dominion Theatre, to-day and Tuesday, is even more powerful than the great story, read by millions in North America. "Cimarron," the picture, is all that is gripping in "Cimarron," the story. Richard Dix as Yancey Cravat seems to have walked right out of the pages of the book. Lon Yountis will never be really slain until you see Dix do it, in the most polgnant scene of talking picture history, the Osage gambling tent sermon episode. And those stupendous clashes of wills between Yancey and Sabra, as portrayed by Dix and Irene Dunne, should make the original story more than an epic. It becomes an immortal record of those deep psychological differences between men and women, out of which has arisen the fundamental character of nations.

months, or since July, 1929. Improvement should increase as the year progresses.

"The probable gain in production of tires is even greater than the expected increase in sales. Inventories at the beginning of this year were twenty-four per cent lower than a year earlier. Production usually exceeds sales when business is bad. We, therefore, expect some addition to inventories at course of during 1931. We estimate total production of automobile tires in 1931 at 55,000,000 as compared with 52,000,-000 produced in 1930, This is an increase of twenty-five per cent.

"Each of the four leading tire manufacturers sustained deficits on their common stock in 1930, after inventory adjustments. Crude rubber prices declined fifty per cent during the year. Substantial recessions were also recorded in prices of cotton, carbon black and other raw materials. There is 100,000 produced in 1930, after inventory adjustments. Crude rubber prices declined fifty per cent during the year. Substantial recessions were also recorded in prices of cotton, carbon black and other raw materials. There is no mount of crude rubber, at leas than half the estimated cost of production, is somewhere near the bottom. The same may be said of other raw materials used in the manufacture of automobile tires."

For Tire Industry

We do not anticipate any inventory losses in 1931.

"Obviously, with prospects for a good increase in a seles and no inventory losses in 1931, the tire manufacturing companies are in a preferred position. Price cuts recently announced will tend to restrict profits. But lower raw material costs and increased or obtained more than offset price reductions. Certainly the industry should operate at a profit in 1931 as contrasted with a loss in 1930. The more fair to slow.

How to Make Marriage Dorothy Dix

THE TEN great mistakes that men and women make in marriage are these:

First. Picking out the wrong individual for a mate. Undertaking to spend a lifetime with a man or woman who is antagonistic instead of congenial. Husbands and wives are purely a matter of taste. If they suit those who have them, all is well and happiness reigns in that household. If they rule each other the wrong way and get on each other he wrong way and get on each other's nerves, everything is wrong and the home is a place of strife and discord.

The success of a marriage does not depend upon the virtues and high moral qualities of the husband and wife, but upon whether they like the same kind of cooking, upon whether they are in politics and religion, upon whether they are movie fans or golf flends or bridge sharps, upon whether they both enjoy the radio or loathe it, upon whether they like to step out or stay in, upon whether they are both highbrows or lowbrows.

Second. Not making a job or mar-gee. Expecting marriage to be a perpetual petting party or a picnic and throwing up their hands and quitting or getting sour and disgruntled when they find out that it is like everything else on earth, full of disillusions and disap-pointments and not all that it has been press-agented to be.

Every man and woman expects to have to put up with disagreeable qualities in their business partners and make allowances for their faults and to have to use tact and forbearance in getting along with them. It is only in their life partners that they demand perfection and consider themselves cheated when they find out they are married to mere human belong thread of codilions.

Third. Not really trying to make a success of marriage. Not putting their backs and their hearts into it and working as hard to make a success of it as they would of any other enterprise into which they had gone and in which they had invested all of their capital.

The man not trying to "sell" himself to his wife as he would to a customer. Making home a dumping ground for all of the ill nature and temper and irritability he dare not inflict on the public. The wife making no effort to keep herself attractive to the husband or make the home a place of peace and comfort and rest.

Fourth. Cutting out the soft talk. Dropping all love-making at the altar. Husbands and wives thinking that each will take the other's affection for granted, because the man brings home the bacon and the woman broils it to his taste.

Each heart hungry for the romance and the tenderness that the other never shows. Each starving for a little appreciation, a little flattery, a kiss that is warm with passion instead of cold and flabby with habit.

Fifth. Not definitely trying to keep in touch with each other. The wife becoming all mother or all bridge or all clubs. The husband becoming all business. There are plenty of husbands and wives who do not speak the same language or know the same people or read the same books and who at middle age sit up in silence when they are together, bored stiff because they have

Making no effort to be satisfied with their bargains. Turning the spotlight on each other's faults instead of each other's virtues. Dwelling on defects instead of good points.

Not saying, "Oh, well, perhaps Mary isn't all my fondest fancy painted her but she is sweet and smiable and she worships me, and that's a lot to get in a wife. Not saying, "Uh, ugh, John isn't the movie hero that I thought I was getting when I married, but he is a good provider and keeps me soft and comfortable and I've got the spiffiest car in town." Not realizing that in marriage. as in everything else, we can hypnotize ourselves into believing what we want

Seventh. Trying to make over each other. Trying to turn each other into a rubber stamp of themselves. Denying each other the right of indi-

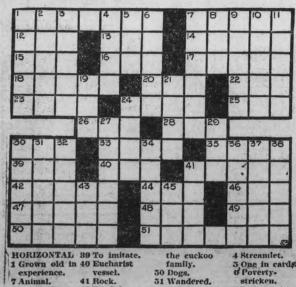

Fault-finding. Criticizing each other's grammar and pronunciation and taste in dress and relatives. Each demanding that the other shall eat what he or she likes, wear the clothes that he or she picks out and have his or her ording to his or her formula,

Eighth. Neither being able even to say the weather is pleasant without starting something. Each disputing every statement the other makes and thus keeping the home in a turmoil.

Ninth. Using no tact in getting along with each other. Bumping headlong into each other's little personal idiosyncrasies instead of gumshoeing nimbly around them. Each scorning to rub the other's fur the right way. Neither willing to take the trouble to placate the other or to approach a controversial subject diplomatically. The husband knowing perfectly well how to manage his wife and keep her eating out of his hands but not bothering to do it. The wife knowing she can joily her husbend along into doing anything, but not thinking it worth while to waste salve on a mere husband.

Tenth. Going to live with mother-in-law. Or letting mother-in-law DOROTHY DIX. come to live with them. Copyright by Public Ledger
